CLA Challenges Survey 2015
Did your library deal with a book or policy challenge in 2014?

This is the 9th annual survey of challenges to library materials and policies that is being conducted by the CLA Intellectual Freedom Advisory Committee.

Your responses will help inform the Committee's policy and advocacy work on behalf of the CLA membership. Results are shared widely, for example, with the International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions, the Book and Periodical Council [of Canada], and the Office of Intellectual Freedom of the American Library Association. An anonymized version of the database is available without charge to anyone requesting it.

The purpose of the survey is to gather data about the nature and outcomes of challenges to library materials and policies (e.g., collection management, access to Internet and facilities) initiated in publicly funded, Canadian libraries (e.g., public, school, academic, and government) between JANUARY 1 and DECEMBER 31, 2014.

One form should be submitted for each challenge to an item or a policy.

Young Canada Works

Young Canada Works (YCW) summer student and graduate internship programs for 2015-2016

The Canadian Library Association in partnership with the Department of Canadian Heritage, Young Canada Works program is delighted to announce the completion of our selection committee process. Our selection committee met for two days, March 26th and March 27th to review all 154 applications, from 130 libraries. Organizations are ranked on financial need, the clarity of their application, the heritage goals that their summer student position fulfills, as well as, the Department of Canadian Heritage's mandate of offering students, gainful employment in the heritage (library) sector.

This year, we are pleased to be able to fund 100 summer library positions and 4 internships, from coast, to coast, to coast. Decisions regarding next steps (approval or declination) of applications will be sent by month-end. We thank you for your continued support of the Young Canada Works program, at the Canadian Library Association.

Should you have any further questions regarding the next phase of the Young Canada Works process here at the Canadian Library Association, or any inquiries regarding Young Canada Works, please do not hesitate to contact me.

25 Ways to Run a Thriving Library on a Shoestring Budge
Rural libraries often face tremendous growth as they pick up the slack where other social and government agencies have reduced service. Of course, this extra demand has typically not been matched by library budgets. This session will outline twenty-five replicable ways the Haliburton County Public Library and the Lennox and Addington Public Libraries have managed to provide top-notch services and programming, all by creatively stretching their modest small-town budgets.

Key benefits:
Participants will leave the session with replicable tips that do one or more of the following three things:
* They save money
* They are cost effective or efficient
* They provide enhanced service at a lower cost or free

Presenters:
Catherine Coles, Manager of Library Services/ County Librarian for the County of Lennox and Addington.

Bessie Sullivan, CEO of Haliburton County Public Library since 2009.

Date: Tuesday April 7, 2015

Engagement and Outreach in Scholarly Communications Initiatives
All public libraries should have the LGBTQ population well represented in their juvenile and teenIn this joint presentation, the presenters will explore outreach issues surrounding Scholarly Communication initiatives from the perspectives of a smaller undergraduate institution (Mount Saint Vincent University) and a larger institution - the University of New Brunswick.

The presenters will explore this topic more in depth as they look at their own experiences in scholarly communication projects at their own institutions and beyond. The presenters will explore their experiences and ideas surrounding about outreach to university community members in different scholarly communications-related projects, such as institutional repositories, journal-publishing, and related initiatives. The presentation will explore such issues such as: how are faculty engaged by these types of initiatives? What appeals to them about these types of projects? How are these partnerships developed and maintained over time? What should libraries be doing to be engaging more with these communities?

Key outcomes:
* Learn about the issues involved in scholarly communications initiatives at Academic Libraries and how outreach factors into these initiatives
*Learn about factors contributing to and participation (or lack thereof) in scholarly communications initiatives
*  Learn about strategies and pitfalls for engaging various different audiences in scholarly communications initiatives at Academic Libraries.

Presenters:
Roger Gillis is the Archives and Scholarly Communications Librarian at Mount Saint Vincent University in Halifax, Nova Scotia where he has worked since 2009.
Michael Nason is the Scholarly Communications Librarian at the University of New Brunswick. Michael holds a MLIS degree from Western University, as well as an MA in History.

Membership Updates

CLA Member Profile - Learn About One of our Fabulous Members

Who are you?
My name is Alieda Blandford, and I'm currently completing my MLIS at Dalhousie University.

What do you do?
I act as the website and social media coordinator for the School of Information Management Student Association (SIMSA), and I also sit as an Editorial Chair for the Dalhousie Journal of Interdisciplinary Management (DJIM), which is a peer-

Alieda is standing I front of a little free library that she established in her neighbourhood reviewed, open access academic journal from Dalhousie's Faculty of Management. I served as the fundraising officer for Librarians Without Borders, and I'm also the founder of FYI Halifax, an action-oriented community group dedicated to local literacy projects and everyday information activism. I currently work part-time as a research assistant for the School of Information Management, where I explore research questions about information discovery and dissemination, especially the ways that information impacts engagement within communities.

Outside of work and school, I am undertaking personal research about the lack of search engine visibility for public library catalogues in Canada. My initial study, "Google, Public Libraries, and the Deep Web," has been accepted for publication in April, and I hope to continue research in this area over the summer. I also hope to present my paper on this topic at a conference near you!

What would be your ideal job?
My ideal job would allow me to work with the public, facilitate access to information, and connect with my community. I hope to work in youth or adult services, collection development, community outreach, and/or web development. Someday I would like to be a branch manager in an urban library.
What are you passionate about?
I am passionate about public libraries, literacy, technology, and community service. With all of the challenges facing public libraries today, with the growth and innovation taking place, with developments in technology, emerging partnerships, new opportunities, and the evolving needs of the public we serve, it is an exciting time to be a library student in Canada.

Title: Demystifying Copyright, A Researcher's Guide to Copyright in Canadian Libraries and Archives, 2nd Edition
ISBN: 978-0-88802-340-7
Year Published: 2014
Publisher: Canadian Library Association

Much has changed since the first edition of Demystifying Copyright was published in 2001. In the years that followed, the federal government embarked on a process of copyright reform to fulfill Canada's obligations under international copyright treaties and to address how copyright operates in the digital environment. Some minor amendments to the Copyright Act we made in 2004, and the Act was significantly amended in 2012, when Copyright Modernization Act was passed. The amendments discussed in this edition came into force 7 November 2012.

This second edition reflects the key changes to Canada's copyright law since 2004 that are of particular relevance to people who conduct research in the nation's libraries and archives, and to the librarians and archivists who serve them.

IFLA Publishes "Guidelines for Library Services to Persons with Dyslexia - Revised and Extended"
The IFLA Guidelines for Library Services to Persons with Dyslexia - Revised and extended - aims to offer guidance to IFLA professional units and all its members worldwide on developing and implementing library services for persons with dyslexia. These guidelines are both a revision and an expansion of the previous Guidelines published by IFLA in 2001 as Professional Report No. 70.

The Guidelines have been developed by an international working group working under the joint responsibility of both the Library Services to People with Special Needs Section (LSN) and the Libraries Serving Persons with Print Disabilities Section (LPD). These new guidelines aim to assist libraries in providing services to persons with dyslexia. They can also be applied to other groups of users with reading difficulties. Read More

Héritage Project

Over the past several months, Canadiana has been partnering with Library and Archives Canada (LAC) on a massive project to digitize 40,000 reels of microfilm (approx. 60 million pages) from LAC's unique and important archival collection. This project is called Héritage.

In order to make these digital collections more discoverable, we need to transcribe them. We would welcome your assistance in prioritizing which collections should be transcribed first. We would also like to connect with those of you who are willing to assist with transcription.

We would be very appreciative if you could take a few minutes to fill out our survey.
