IFLA Honorary Fellow Award for 2015

The Canadian Library Association and ASTED congratulate Ms. Ingrid Parent, University Librarian from the University of British Columbia (UBC) in Vancouver, British Columbia, on being awarded the prestigious IFLA Honorary Fellow Award for 2015. Honorary Fellow is IFLA's highest award and is awarded on the basis of merit for long and distinguished service to IFLA.

As a long-standing and eclectic contributor to IFLA since 1995 when she began her term as Chair of the IFLA Cataloguing Section Standing Committee culminating in her term as IFLA President from 2001 to 2003, Ms. Parent has proven herself an exemplary leader who both honoured and enhanced IFLA's international mandate. Canadian Public Libraries for Fair Ebook Pricing

Canadian Public Libraries for Fair Ebook Pricing have joined to raise awareness of high ebook prices charged by multinational publishers at www.fairpricingforlibraries.org. Despite booming borrowing rates and high demand for ebooks, public libraries face challenges in ensuring universal access to this content.

Some multinational publishers charge libraries as much as three to five times more for ebooks than the consumer price, while others place caps and time limits on use. This means there are fewer titles and fewer copies for readers to discover.

Canadian Public Libraries for Fair Ebook Pricing will continue to communicate its position to several government and publishing stakeholders, and to work collaboratively with other large public library systems across North America.

The coalition will hold continued conversations with multinational publishers as part of an effort to establish fair and reasonable prices and obtain more ebooks.

Community-Led Work in Practice: Experiences from Canadian Libraries

One of the CLA Community-Led Library Service Network's goals for 2014-2015 was to create a series of papers exploring aspects of community-led work, providing an opportunity to share information about the work being done in Canadian libraries and offering useful information and ideas to others in an accessible and readable format.

Network members have so far contributed eight papers on a variety of topics, which have been posted on the Community-Led Library Service Network website.

Laura Young wrote about Edmonton Public Libraries' epl2go, a mobile service providing communities with library services when access to a traditional library branch is limited. In Let the Community lead, Andrea Cecchetto and Leah Rucchetto shared Markham Public Library's experience using a community-led approach in developing their strategic plan. Rejuvenating library service in a rural community through community engagement was the focus of a post by Amanda Fullerton and Sara Gillis of Halifax Public Libraries.

John Pateman of Thunder Bay Public Library contributed a series of posts on developing a community led strategy, staff and service structures, systems and culture.

If you have a question for any of our authors, please feel free to post comments on the website. PDF versions of these posts, and a lengthy list of other community-led resources, are available on the Resources page.

Workshops / Webinars / Events

Copyright and Accessibility: Intrinsically Connected

This session will explore the co-relation between the Canadian Copyright Act and the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA) specifically in the context of production of accessible texts. This session will explore themes of what inclusive formats are and how institutions of higher learning currently tackle their production across Ontario (legally, that is).

Key outcomes:

- * Better understanding of how the two pieces of legislation interact
- * Highlights with regard to practical applicability
- * How to measure accessibility + copyright compliance and conduct risk analysis

Presenter(s):

Stephen Spong holds a J.D., and a M.I. and has conducted extensive research into the evolving landscape of Canadian Copyright Act, specifically as it interacts with the Ontario accessibility legislation.

Libraries Getting Ready for Canada's 150th Anniversary

Getting ready for major Canadian events can be time consuming and challenging.

"Canada 150: Canada's Untold Stories -- Notre Canada - Nos Histoires" provides a ready-made solution. Library participants (students, users and visitors) can go directly from the library's webpage to the portal that is collecting photos and stories in English and French to be preserved forever and always searchable and retrievable. Harry van Bommel will explain the project and the simplest way that school, public and private libraries can participate. He will also look at more specific projects that groups can create themselves. Whatever libraries choose, they can be part of the largest history-gathering project ever in Canada.

Key outcomes:

- * Begin looking at Canada's 150th anniversary and how to participate
- * Begin to look at the easiest way to join in digitally to the larger project
- * Begin to look at more specific projects within the library itself
- * Begin to build enthusiasm amongst librarians nationwide for our 150th anniversary.

Presenters:

Harry van Bommel is the founder of the Canada 150 Collaborative Project, and is determined that every Canadian of every age and background have an opportunity to record and preserve their stories forever. He is the author of 50 books and a true fan of libraries since so much of his research is done there. He took care of his parents and grandfather at home until they died so he knows how important it is for families to record their life stories for future generations.

Inclusive Library - Publishing & Services This session will look at libraries as "publishers" and what that role really entails? What can library publishers do that we cannot get from monster publishing houses or university presses? While some schools cite challenges in motivating authors to contribute large scale works to open access collections, there are many positive opportunities which can be identified for libraries to address - areas where publishers have historically struggled. So what exactly are these areas and what can libraries do differently in support of users of all abilities?

Where does this topic leave us today? As consortiums or partners we need to systematically explore the above themes, focusing on the value of producing quality form as well as content.

Key outcomes:

- * What does a quality publication mean?
- * What is a digital monograph?
- * What standards library publishers need to aspire to in order to ensure they are producing inclusive learning materials?

The Evolving Librarian: Responding to Changes in the Workplace and Healthcare

The librarian's role is changing and they must either evolve and adapt or become a casualty of attrition. They are faced more than ever with a shrinking budget and pressure to show their impact. Administration is demanding more than books and journals from its librarians and scrutinizing everything with an eye on its return on investment. This class will look at these changes and provide examples of how librarians can meet them head on.

This MLA accredited CE course is sponsored by OHLA in partnership with OLA.

Key outcomes:

- * To develop a better understanding of how outside factors influence and shape institutions, caregivers, and libraries.

* To learn more about these factors so that they will be able to better adapt to meet new demands.

* Participants will be challenged to analyze their library and library services and how they are positioned to deal with these new influences. Participants will be able to create a strategy that they can use in their library.

Presenter(s):

Michelle Kraft is the Senior Medical Librarian at the Cleveland Clinic Alumni Medical Library and the President-Elect for the Medical Library Association. She is the author of the Krafty Librarian, a site focused on issues within medical librarianship, and a frequent moderator on the #medlibs weekly discussion group on Twitter. She is interested in technology and its use for finding information.

Virtually Embedded: The Librarian in an Online Environment

Author: Steve Albrecht

196 pages 8.25" x 11" Softcover

ISBN-13: 978-0-8389-8684-4

Price: $ 62.00

The rise of online education at institutions of higher learning, together with the increasing cost of higher education, lead some to suggest that online (or distance) education will eventually become the dominant form of higher learning. This has particular significance for librarians. This casebook, a blueprint for embedding academic librarians in online environments, from undergraduate to science-based graduate schools to MOOCs is the first to explore how librarians can play a key role in the virtual academic landscape. The authors, academic librarians representing a broad range of colleges and universities, look at the evolution of the embedded librarian from physical to virtual, suggest how to develop and implement unique programs in and out of the classroom, and explain how to scale programs once they are embedded.

This book is suitable for professional collections in academic libraries of all sizes and types. It is also suitable for collections in schools of library and information science.

Member Updates

Learn about one of our fabulous members

Who are you and where are you from:

My name is Michelle Lam and I'm originally from Vancouver, BC. I have a Bachelor's Degree from Simon Fraser University, where I majored in History and minored in Sociology. I'm currently in Ottawa and halfway through a Library and Information Technician diploma from Algonquin College.

What do you do:

I currently have a summer information management job with a government department. Mostly, I'm a LIT student trying to figure out what I want to do once I graduate!

What would be your ideal job:

A year ago, I would have said I would love to be a reference assistant. That still holds true but after learning more about the different roles a library technician can do, I have a more open mind when it comes to workplaces. Ideally, I would be encouraged to learn different ways of doing things and be surrounded by people who are equally passionate and enthusiastic about the work that we do.

Where do you see yourself career wise in 10 years:

Libraries can change a lot in ten years but I would hope that I would be working in a dynamic library that embraces new technologies, is open to change, and has an engaged and passionate workforce.

Describe what you are passionate about:

I am passionate about learning and sharing knowledge with people. It's so interesting how people learn and see things differently. I also enjoy traveling since it exposes you to different perspectives.

Congratulations Carol Rigby

Congratulations to CLA member Carol Rigby who has just published "Nunavut Libraries Online Establish Inuit Language Bibliographic Cataloguing Standards: Promoting Indigenous Language Using a Commercial ILS" in the recent special issue of Cataloging & Classification Quarterly on indigenous knowledge organization.

Transition timescales for RDA Governanc

In June 2015, The Committee of Principals shared an initial statement with stakeholders which outlined the direction for the future development of the Governing structures for the development of RDA.

This statement committed to sharing a detailed transition plan with stakeholders prior to IFLA's World Library and Information Congress in 2015.

Having reviewed the agreed changes, the Committee has agreed a 4-5 year programme of activity to enable the current structure to move, over time, towards the new governing structure.

Risk Register for Documentary Heritage

IFLA has created a Risk Register for documentary heritage in order to raise awareness for the preservation, conservation, and safeguarding of documentary heritage (in any format) world-wide. They aim to gather data on documentary heritage collections in order to be able to respond adequately if confronted with natural or man-made disasters.

The Risk Register enables IFLA to provide contact and geo-spatial information to UNESCO and the organisational partners of the International Committee of the Blue Shield acting in case of disaster. This increases the survival of unique documentary heritage and its safeguarding to help rebuild communities in the post-disaster recovery period and beyond. Read More

The NMC Horizon Report - 2015 Library Edition

The report examines key trends, significant challenges, and important developments in technology for their impact on academic and research libraries across the globe.

Excerpt:

What is on the five-year horizon for academic and research libraries worldwide? Which trends and technologies will drive change? What are the challenges that we consider as solvable or difficult to overcome, and how can we strategize effective solutions? These questions and similar inquiries regarding technology adoption and transforming teaching and learning steered the collaborative research and discussions of a body of 53 experts to produce the NMC Horizon Report: 2015 Library Edition, in partnership with the University of Applied Sciences (HTW) Chur, Technische Informationsbibliothek (TIB) Hannover, and ETH-Bibliothek Zurich. The NMC Horizon Report series charts the five-year horizon for the impact of emerging technologies in learning sectors across the globe. With more than 13 years of research and publications, it can be regarded as the world's longest-running exploration of emerging technology trends and uptake in education. IFLA Statement on Privacy in the Library Environment

At its 14 August 2015 meeting in Cape Town, South Africa, the IFLA Governing Board endorsed an IFLA Statement on Privacy in the Library Environment. The FAIFE Committee oversaw preparation of the Statement and benefitted from consultation with IFLA units and various Internet civil liberties advocacy organizations.

This new Statement on Privacy in the Library Environment is intended to give guidance to libraries and information services in an environment that includes mass surveillance by governments and routine user data collection by commercial interests that provide content or services through the Internet. Risks to library users' privacy might arise through their use of search or social media applications on the Web or their use of library platforms and content that collect data on end users.

The statement describes current challenges to the protection of user privacy for libraries and information services, outlines relevant international statements of privacy as a right and identifies related IFLA policies. Finally, the Statement on Privacy in the Library Environment offers recommendations to libraries and information services around both advocacy for privacy protection and practical measures to protect user privacy in libraries. It recognizes that libraries and information services have little ability to affect some kinds of data collection about their users, and encourages appropriately adjusting local library data collection practices, considering privacy concerns in procuring platforms and services, informing and educating users of risks and best practices, and participating in community efforts to promote the protection of privacy.

Outside the Lines is a week-long celebration demonstrating the creativity and innovation happening in libraries. Whether your organization is large or small, a school library or a public library, you can participate by hosting at least one event or campaign that:

- Gets people thinking - and talking - about libraries in a different way
- Showcases the library out in the community as well as in the library
- Highlights how your library is relevant to people's lives
- Represents your local community
- Is active versus passive - gets people engaged
- Is extraordinary and unexpected
- Most importantly, is fun!

Alexandria: The Journal of National and International Library and Information Issues invites submissions for a themed issue on Digital Curation and Research Data Management.

The concepts, processes and practice comprising digital curation are, in 2015, prominent in many journals, but clarification on best practice is still desirable. Libraries and other collection institutions are aware of the need to manage their digital resources: from creation, indexing, storage, preservation and dissemination of data, to understanding tools for analysis and the subsequent addition of value, the establishment of workflow policies, promotional outreach and fundraising. The phrase digital curation is perhaps primarily understood within the cultural context, but it also encompasses management of research data. This special issue will include papers focusing on a broad spectrum of engagement related to the management of our complete digital heritage, and our current digital research output. Emphasis should be placed on these issues in the context of national libraries and other national collection institutions. Manuscripts should be sent, by 31 December 2015 Read More
